The True R&B Pioneers

Twelve Hit-Makers from the Early Years

Presented by Claus Röhnisch
The R&B Pioneers Series – Volume Nine of twelve

Louis Jordan and his Tympany Five - well, actually a total of seven on most late 1940s recordings (the extra sax player was re-introduced on "Caldonia" in 1945; and Carl Hogan, guitarist, entered soon after that same year).

Introduction

Most music's uncountable analysts agree that "Rhythm & Blues" was born during the last year of World War II (or straight after the end of it), although the Sepia performers had sung and played bluesy rhythms ever since 1920. But the term "Rhythm and Blues" was not used to define the black popular music until Jerry Wexler (then a Billboard editor) coined it and the Billboard magazine started to publish weekly "Most Played Juke Box Rhythm & Blues Records" and "Best Selling Retail Rhythm & Blues Records" on the 25th of June in 1949 (with Charles Brown Trio topping both those charts with "Trouble Blues" for several weeks – it had already topped the "Race Records" charts preceding the "Rhythm & Blues" charts). The charts at that time comprised (at the most up to) 15 records – and it all started in October 1942, when Billboard introduced a "Harlem Hit Parade" with 10 positions. In 1945 the "Harlem Hit Parade" had been transformed to two "Race Records" charts. The term "Rhythm & Blues" is still used today, although "Soul" (late 1960s, early 1970s), "Black" (1980s), and "Hip-Hop" (early 2000s) were used sporadically. Who then were the true R&B Pioneers? In this presentation I have tried to present to you some of the most interesting Sepia performers (the ones who started the "revolution" and who became some kind of legends). You may disagree - of course one can add several more of the great jazz performers of the 1930s and 1940s to this list (or say: what has jazz got to do with R&B? – well jazz very often turned Pop, and sometimes R&B). Lionel Hampton was the prime performer, who became so popular that he often was criticised by the jazz "followers", and he can truly be called "the jazz swinger who invented R&B". Here is a list of performers who definitely could have "earned" a place in this volume. First and foremost – Dinah Washington – "Queen of the Blues", "the most popular female recording artist of the 1950s", who debuted through Leonard Feather with Lionel Hampton's uncredited "Sextet" in December, 1943. And there are Professor Longhair, Smiley Lewis, Little Willie Littlefield, Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, Jimmy Witherspoon, Ivory Joe Hunter, Lucky Millinder, Roy Milton, Joe Liggins (and Jimmy too), Bull Moose Jackson, Big Jay McNeely, Bill Doggett, and several more. The twelve artists presented here are the ones – in the mind of the editor of this work – the most important artists, who have to be added to the 44 performers, who already have been presented earlier in the "R&B Pioneers Series". It was no problem to find a further 12 true R&B Pioneers in order to get some kind of true perspective on the matter. What the artists presented here have in common is that they all started their careers before the R&B explosion and that they all were role models for the early 1950s R&B performers. In the last volume of the "R&B Pioneer Series" – you will learn to know (more of) the performers who became famous as "Rhythm & Blues" really crossed over to find acceptance in the white world (turning pop) – "Predecessors of the Soul Explosion in the 1960s". Number of R&B Top 10 Hits presented below for each artist (including the pre-R&B charts). The numbers include the hits for Vinson's, Harris', and Brown's hits as featured (and credited) vocalist with bands before going solo. At the end of this publication you will find special features on Robert Jr. Lockwood (the true Blues Veteran) plus The Ravens and The Orioles (the two true Pioneer "Birds"); and Tampa Red (the Unsung King). / the very first vocal blues: "Crazy Blues" by Mamie Smith in 1920 /

LIONEL HAMPTON

"Hamp" - drummer, pianist, vibraphonist - Born Lionel Leo Hampton on April 20, 1908 in Birmingham, Alabama (not Louisville, Kentucky). Raised in Birmingham and Chicago (where he started to play drums - getting his first drum set in 1923). Moved to Los Angeles in 1927, where he started to play with the Les Hite orchestra. He also worked with Reb Spikes' band in 1924 and recorded with Paul Howard's Quality Serenaders in 1929/30 (playing drums and two-finger piano). Continued to play with Les Hite and started his try with vibes on October 16, 1930 (with Louis Armstrong) and met dancer Gladys Riddle, who became his wife and business manager. Studied music and started his own band, which worked until 1936 when he joined Benny Goodman, with whom he worked until 1940 - although he became an RCA Victor record star from 1937 - with a total of 91, several classic, recordings featuring all star jazz artists between February 8, 1937 and April 8, 1941. Formed his own big band in September, 1940 and joined Decca, where he debuted on December 24, 1941. Became a super star as Lionel Hampton and his Orchestra (now with his true own band). Several famous R&B instrumentalists made music history with Lionel Hampton. Here is a list of some of them: Illinois Jacquet, Dexter Gordon, Dinah Washington (vocals), Bill Doggett, Joe Morris, Quincy Jones, Milton Buckner, Lamar Wright, Earl Bostic, Al Sears, Arnett Cobbs, Benny Carter, Cozy Cole, and Wes Montgomery. Hampton died in a New York hospital on August 31, 2002 (then a resident of Washington, DC).

Essential CD: Jukebox Hits 1943-1950 - Acrobat ACMCD 4012 (2003) - 20 great recordings

For the Collector: The Lionel Hampton Story (4CD) - Properbox 12 (2000) covering 1937-1949 incl his 1950 hit "Rag Mop" - with great inlay booklet essay & discography by producer Joop Visser.

ERSKINE HAWKINS

Often sub-credited "The Twentieth Century Gabriel" - Erskine Ramsay Hawkins was one of the greatest swing era band leaders and trumpeter. Born July 26, 1914 in Birmingham Alabama - died November 11, 1993 in Willingboro, New Jersey. Started a "territorial" band, The Collegians in Montgomery, Alabama in 1929 featuring a.o. Paul Bascomb, Dud Bascomb, Avery Parrish, Julian Dash, Reuben Phillips, the great arranger Sammy Lowe, and later member Haywood Henry. In 1934, Erskine Hawkins and the Collegians travelled to New York, and Hawkins played at the Apollo. In 1936 they left Alabama and began recording for Vocalion as the Erskine Hawkins Orchestra. In 1938, the band switched to RCA Victor (with several records issued on Bluebird). They were labelled Erskine Hawkins and his Orchestra. Their biggest hit was "Tuxedo Junction", written in 1939 by Hawkins and members of his orchestra, and covered for a gigantic hit by Glenn Miller (also on Bluebird). He kept his (often 22-piece) large band up to 1953, although the trumpeter worked on late into the 1980s.

“THE GRANDFATHER of Rock ‘n’ Roll” (and Milt Gabler)

LOUIS JORDAN

"King of the Juke Boxes" – "Grandfather of Rock and Roll" – "Louie" – "the Man who Invented Rock" alto saxophonist and East Coast jazz/blues jive styled singer and a dean of jump blues linking pre-war jazz bands with post-war R&B combos with his Tympany Five, who only in the beginning where just five - later mostly seven and sometimes eight including Jordan. Holding the Billboard's Race/R&B charts' #1 spot for a total of 101 weeks between 1942 and 1950. Jordan was innovative and extremely popular during the war years and the birth of R&B. The later famous Bill Doggett arranged and played piano on several Jordan songs. Worked in Arkansas and came to Philadelphia in 1930. Arrived in New York 1936. Inducted into the Blues Foundation Hall of Fame in 1983, and into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1987.

BUDDY & ELLA JOHNSON

"The Walk 'Em Rhythm Man" – Buddy Johnson - Qualitative and popular band-leader at the Savoy Ballroom, vocalist, pianist and composer. Started to play the piano at age of four. Came to New York in 1938 and formed a 16-piece big band (which lasted longer than all the other swing bands - Johnson toured one-nighters with his orchestra into 1964 (although in later years the band was not that large anymore). Went with the Cotton Club Revue to Europe. Sister Ella Johnson (born June 22, 1917 (not 1923) and a truly great vocalist - hailed by critics as the equal of Billie Holiday and Ella Fitzgerald -, who sang on most of Johnson's hits; died in February 16, 2004) joined the band in 1940. Balladeer Arthur Prysock joined in late 1943 and Buddy also had a vocal group on his revue called The Bee Jays. Buddy and Ella were inducted into the Blues Foundation Hall of Fame in 2012.

Born: Woodrow Wilson Johnson January 10, 1914 (or poss 1912 or 1915) in High Hill, near Darlington, South Carolina.
Died of brain tumor (cancer) - after several years of being a minister- on February 9, 1977 in New York City.
First recordings: New York November, 1939 with The Mack Sisters Jammin' in Georgia / Stop Pretending on Decca 7864.
Records for: Decca 1939-1952, Mercury 1953-1958, Roulette 1958 and later Old Town.

Essential CDs: Vinson's Acrobat CD, "Cleanhead Blues", differs from the "Jukebox Hits" covers (Acrobat ACRC128). It was issued in 2006 (above) and in 2008 (top left) in two different covers. The Jasmine JASCD 3117 (from 2019) "Mr Cleanhead Blows His Greatest Hits – Selected Singles 1944-1950" contains 27 tracks.

"Cleanhead" – underrated, but terrific blues "shouter" / "crier" and alto saxophonist, who joined Chester Boone's territory band during school holidays. Upon his graduation in 1935, he joined the band full-time, remaining when the outfit was taken over by Milt Larkin in 1936. During his five-year tenure with the legendary Larkin's band he met T-Bone Walker, Arnett Cobb, and Illinois Jacquet. Worked with Lil Green and Big Bill Broonzy in 1941. After being discovered by Cootie Williams in late 1941 (who had worked with Benny Goodman and with Duke Ellington), Vinson joined the trumpeter's new orchestra in New York City and made his recording debut for Okeh Records in April 1942, singing a solid blues vocal on "When My Baby Left Me". Later recorded for Hit (also issued on Majestic) and for Capitol. Signed as a soloist with his own orchestra for Mercury in 1945 (and re-recorded "Cherry Red"). The nicknames "Mr. Cleanhead" and sometimes "Cleanhead" were used on several records. After his decline he worked with Jay McShann in 1960 (who he already had met in the 1940s) and made a great come-back with Johnny Otis in the 1970s. Inducted into the Blues Foundation Hall of Fame in 2014.

Born: Edward L. Vinson Jr December 18, 1917 in Houston, Texas.
Died of heart attack on July 2, 1988 in Los Angeles, California.
Records for: Hit 1945, Capitol 1945 (Cootie Williams), Mercury December 1945 – December 1947, King 49-52, Mercury again 54-55, Bethlehem 1957, Riverside 1960

WYNONIE HARRIS

"Mr. Blues" – Blues shouter and risqué styled lady-killer and self-taught some-times drummer. Worked as dancer and comedian. Hired by Lucky Millinder in 1944, and soon the first of King Records' many prolific stars of early city blues. His Apollo recordings were issued as Wynonie "Blues" Harris, some later recordings had "Mr. Blues" as nick. Was semi-retired during 1953 - 1960, but regarded as a true R&B pioneer. Inducted into the Blues Foundation Hall of Fame in 1994.

Born: Wynonie Hood (later stepfather Luther Harris) August 24, 1912 (not 1915), prob in Davenport, Iowa (not Omaha, Nebraska).
Died of cancer June 14, 1969, Los Angeles, Calif. Worked in Omaha, Kansas City, arrived in Los Angeles 1941 and also worked in New York - back to Los Angeles in 1945, and came back to New York in 1947.
First recordings: NYC May 26, 1944 with Lucky Millinder Who Threw The Whiskey In The Well /Hurry Hurry - Decca 18674 (issued May 1945); Los Angeles July 1945 with Johnny Otis Around The Clock Blues - Philo/Aladdin 103; L.A. August 2, 1945 with Illinois Jacquet, Wynonie's Blues - Apollo 362.

A Nice Introduction to Rhythm & Blues (and a bit of Atlantic nostalgia)

THE CRESCENDOS - the unknown super group

Center: photo montage from <http://doo-wop.blog.org>
 Top Will "Dub" Jones, Prentice Moreland; bottom Bobby Relf, Robert Byrd.
 Flanking: The Hollywood Flames, and The Cadets.

In September 1956, Robert Byrd (of The Hollywood Flames) recorded some songs for Atlantic with a group billed as The Crescendos. The others were Bobby Relf, Prentice Moreland, and Will "Dub" Jones (who sang lead on "Sweet Dreams"). Bobby Relf had been the lead of The Laurels and a close friend of Byrd's (the latter soon became Bobby Day), Dub Jones was the current bass of The Cadets, and Prentice Moreland had been on The Cadets' "Stranded In The Jungle", Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller produced (and also wrote "Finders Keepers").

9/56 - Finders Keepers / Sweet Dreams (Atlantic 1109)
1/59 - Sweet Dreams / I'll Be Seeing You (Atlantic 1104)
1956 - You'll Be There (Atlantic) (unreleased)

The Real Rhythm And Blues

by Hugh Gregory Paperback: 240 pages

A Blandford Book: Cassell Illustrated, UK (December 31, 1998)

A great little book covering the original Rhythm & Blues era, with short (but near wall-to-wall) biographies of 120 R&B Pioneers (including several vocal groups..

The great "History of Rhythm & Blues" series on eight Atlantic LPs (1968-1969).

“THE GODFATHER of Rhythm & Blues” (and Ralph Bass)

JOHNNY OTIS ORCHESTRA

Johnny Otis "Godfather of R&B" - Bandleader/ drummer / vibraphonist (and sometimes singer) and one of the most important figures of pioneer R&B. Lived in Omaha, Nebraska in the mid 1940s. Music roots in the Kansas City / Omaha tradition, inspired by Lionel Hampton. Worked with several early LA artists, like Charles Brown (and played drums on his famous "Driftin' Blues" hitting 1946), Wynonie Harris, Joe Swift et co. Co-owner of L.A. blues clubs "The Barrelhouse" and later "The Oasis". Johnny changed from playing drums to vibes after an accident in 1949. The Johnny Otis Rhythm & Blues Caravan / Revue / Show skyrocketed many original R&B stars: the Robins, Little Esther, Marie Adams; and included several top musicians: Pete "Guitar" Lewis and later Jimmy Nolen, gtr; Devonia "Lady Dee" Williams, pno; and Leard Bell, dms. Was billed on records as Johnny Otis, His Drums & Orchestra during the early years for Leon and Otis René (Excelsior often with a big band) and as Johnny Otis Quintette - sometimes Orchestra - (with Ralph Bass as producer for Savoy) during the early '50s. When the quintet was enlarged to a small orchestra it also included several talents of L.A.'s horns and accompanied early Etta James, Big Mama Thornton, Little Esther again, Johnny Ace and Little Richard a.o. Later often billed as The Johnny Otis Show inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1994, and into the Blues Foundation Hall of Fame in 2000.

Born: John Alexander Veliotes (Caucasian, Greek parents), December 28 or 29, 1921, Vallejo, Calif.

Some of Johnny Otis' "Guests"

In July 1945 Johnny Otis All Stars - a quintet with Otis on drums, introduced Wynonie Harris as head credit (he had sung as vocalist for Lucky Millinder) on a record titled "Around The Clock (Blues)" - pt 1 and pt 2. It was issued on Philo 103 (in California - later renamed Aladdin - Eddie and Leo Mesner's classic label) as Wynonie Harris and Johnny Otis All Stars. On September 11, 1945 Otis guested Johnny Moore's Three Blazers (Charles Brown, vocals and piano) on a Philo session which resulted in the hit "Drifting Blues" on Philo 112 in late 1946. Two days later, September 13, Jimmy Rushing (Count Basie's great shouter) guested Johnny Otis, His Drums and Orchestra on two superb vocals, "My Baby's Business" and "Jimmy's Round-the-clock Blues" (yes same as Harris). The songs were issued on two Excelsior singles (Otis Rene's label), which had "Preston's Love Mansion" and the great version of "Harlem Nocturne" as instrumental A-sides. Image far right: Joe Swift, who recorded with Johnny for Leon Rene's Exclusive in 1947 or -48 (Otis Rene's brother) label.

The Robins, originally called The Four Bluebirds on Excelsior, and later hit on Savoy in 1950-51. Ty Terrell, Billy Richard (top), Bobby Nunn (center), and Roy Richard (bottom). Johnny Otis Quintette: Mario Delagarde, Pete "Guitar" Lewis, Leard Bell, Johnny Otis, and Devonia "Lady Dee" Williams at the piano. She recorded for Savoy with her California Playboys in February 1949, and was a member of the Johnny Otis Orchestra for many years. Pete "Guitar" Lewis in his prime. He was succeeded by Jimmy Nolen (see below) in 1955 (who later became the great guitarist with James Brown). Big Jay Mc Neely ("discovered by Otis). He recorded for Savoy in 1949 and had a #1 R&B hit with the classic honker "The Deacon's Hop" (and a great ballad hit ten years later with "There Is Something On Your Mind", featuring Little Sonny Warner, vocals).

Little Esther (by then with the surname Jones) and Mel Walker - the two famous early Savoy vocal "refrain" stars with Otis' Orchestra (Mel was contracted to Mercury with Otis, and Little Esther went to Federal). Another young woman, later famous Linda Hopkins, did four great songs with the Otis Orchestra for Savoy in 1951. In 1952 Johnny followed producer Ralph Bass and Little Esther to the King-label subsidiary Federal, especially formed for Bass. Johnny was contracted to Mercury so he worked in disguise for the label. One great record from that period is The Royals' original "Every Beat Of My Heart" (recorded before Hank Ballard entered the group). Big Mama Thornton of "Hound Dog" fame, recorded 1952 for Peacock with Otis' disguised band - (featuring Lewis' guitar), a #1 R&B hit in 1953. Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller also worked as composers for Federal in 1952 and had their bouts with Johnny and with Little Willie Littlefield later, concerning the composer credits for "Hound Dog", which was recorded the same August month of 1952 as the original "Kansas City" (Littlefield). Otis eventually left Mercury and Federal for Duke/Peacock. Johnny Ace (who had recorded for Duke already in early 1952 with his Beale Streeters), made several recordings with the Johnny Otis Orchestra for that label in Los Angeles in 1953 and 1954 - "Pledging My Love" was one of them. Junior Ryder and Marie Adams also recorded with Johnny for Peacock. Little Richard did so too in Houston in late 1953, the recordings were held in the can until the New Orleans recording "Tutti-Frutti" hit for Specialty in 1955.

Mel Williams, singing with The Sheiks on the original "So Fine" for Federal, and with the Johnny Otis Show in the Jays (for Johnny's own label Dig in 1955). This group was later named The Shields, and featured Richard Berry, Jesse Belvin, Arthur Lee Maye, and Johnny "Guitar" Watson on-and-off. Guitarist Jimmy Nolen in his early days, also recording for Dig. During the Capitol years the Johnny Otis Show also featured long-time Otis associate Marie Adams and the Three Tons Of Joy. Imaged: a.o. the great Adams around 1956 on an Ace (UK) CD cover. Fourth image above: with the great duo of Don & Dewey - Don "Sugarcane" Harris, violin and Dewey Terry, guitar - two California legends, who recorded for Specialty during the mid and late 1950s. Heading image: Shuggie Otis, Delmar Evans, and Johnny Otis. Johnny returned to King in 1961-62 taking Devonia with him (backing - and leading - Johnny "Guitar" Watson). Far right: The Royals (here with Ballard in 1953). The Modern Records' girl group The Dreamers (who backed several early Modern stars flank Otis in 1954). Otis and The Penguins around 1958 (Dexter Tisby, lead Cleve Duncan, Teddy Harper, and Randy Jones).

IKE TURNER

"King of Rhythm" - "Father of Rock 'n Roll" - Pianist/guitarist (and sometimes singer) of the Mississippi Delta blues tradition. Started out in Clarksdale and played a vital role in the early Memphis post-war blues scene (from 1950 and worked with Robert Nighthawk). Settled in St. Louis in 1954 and was an important member of the 1960s chitlin' circuit - north and south. Became famous with the hits of Ike & Tina Turner (and produced hits by his female back-upers The Ikettes. Was "married" to Tina during 1958-1976. Ike, who learned the piano from Pinetop Perkins in Clarksdale, started his Kings of Rhythm in around 1950, featuring a.o. tenor saxophonists Raymond Hill and Jackie Brenston (Brenston sang on the "Rocket 88" hit). Produced and worked with B.B. King, the Howlin' Wolf, Elmore James, and several other Memphis and Delta blues singers during the early '50s. Jailed for drug conviction during the '90s, but back and in full bloom in later days, working with Los Angeles as a base with his "The Ike Turner Revue" (included as one of several famous "guests" to John Lee Hooker recordings). Inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1991, and into the Blues Foundation Hall of Fame in 2005.

Born: Ike Wister Turner November 15, 1931, Clarksdale, Miss.

THE FIVE KEYS

The ground-breaking favorite group of Doo-Wop fans was formed as the Sentimental Four in Newport News, Virginia in the late 1940s, and initially consisted of two sets of brothers - Rudy West (lead born 25 July 1932, Newport News, Virginia) and Bernie West (born 4 February 1930, Newport News), Ripley Ingram (born 1930 Newport News) and Rafael Ingram. In early 1949 Edwin Hall joined as fifth singer. Rafael left later that year for the Air Force (joining the Avalons by his return). Dickie Smith now joined as new extra lead singer. Maryland Pierce (also lead singer, born 1933) embarked the group when Hall left in 1950. The name of the group was soon changed to The Five Keys. Guitarist Joe Jones also joined. Now the "classic" lineup was in place: Rudy West (first tenor), Maryland Pierce (second tenor), Ripley Ingram (octave tenor), Dickie Smith (baritone/second tenor), and Bernie West (bass), along with guitarist Joe Jones (soon replaced by another Joe Jones, this time a pianist). They were signed to Aladdin Records in early 1951, and in October 1952 Rudy West left to join the United States Army. He was replaced by Ulysses K. Hicks (who dies on February 1, 1955 still touring with the group, although he was to fadeout since Rudy had returned from the Army in late 1954). In late 1953 Dickie Smith left for the Air Force, and was replaced by Ramon Loper. The Five Keys were signed to Capitol Records in 1954 - first record out in October (after a short spell on RCA - still recording in New York - not leaving Virginia, although some of the Capitol hits were cut in Los Angeles). Their popularity took further steps up. In 1958 Rudy West tried to go solo (soon returning) and Loper left. Two new members were recruited but the hits dried out - although Rudy fronted his group until his death on May 14, 1998. Inducted into the Vocal Group Hall of Fame in 2002.

Ernie Freeman

From Wikipedia (slightly edited)

Ernie (Ernest Aaron) Freeman (16 August 1922, Cleveland, Ohio – 15 May 1981, North Hollywood, California) was an American pianist, organist and arranger.

In 1935 he began playing in local Cleveland area nightclubs, and also formed a classical music trio for local social functions with his father and his sister Evelyn. Around 1939, he and Evelyn formed a new band, The Evelyn Freeman Swing Band, with fellow teenagers from Cleveland Central High School. Evelyn played piano, while Ernie played saxophone and also began writing arrangements for the band. The band began a regular engagement at the Circle Ballroom in Cleveland, and broadcast shows for WHK radio station. In 1942, most of the band, apart from Evelyn, joined the US Navy together, and became the first all-black Navy Band, called "The Gobs Of Swing", with Ernie as its leader.

After leaving the Navy in 1945 Ernie entered the Cleveland Institute of Music, from which he graduated with a BA degree. In 1946 he moved with his family to Los Angeles, to attend the University of Southern California where he received his masters degree in music composition.

After a spell as arranger for Woody Herman he joined the Ernie Fields Orchestra, playing the piano. Other members of the band included saxophonists Earl Bostic and Plas Johnson, guitarist René Hall, and drummer Earl Palmer. In 1951 Freeman also began playing with the Billy Hadnott Sextet, but left in 1954 to form his own combo with Johnson, Palmer and guitarist Irving Ashby. In 1955 they released their first record, "No No Baby" on the Middle-Tone label. They also recorded with a vocal group, The Voices, who included Bobby Byrd and Earl Nelson of The Hollywood Flames (later Bob & Earl). Freeman played on numerous early rock and R&B sessions in Los Angeles, California in the 1950s, particularly on the Specialty, Modern, and Aladdin labels, as well as for white artists such as Duane Eddy and Bobby Vee. He played piano on The Platters' "The Great Pretender" in 1955, and began releasing a number of instrumental records of his own. These included "Jivin' Around" (#5 on the R&B chart in 1956), and his cover version of Bill Justis' "Raunchy", his biggest solo success, which reached #4 on the pop chart and #1 on the R&B chart in 1957.

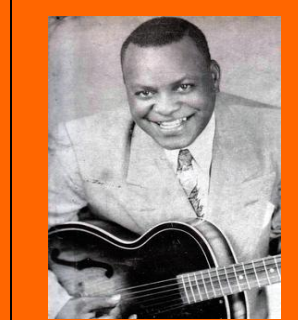

In 1958 The Ernie Fields Orchestra, including Freeman, became the house band for the newly formed (Otis and Leon Rene's) Rendezvous record label. In 1961, with Palmer, Johnson and René Hall, they began recording as B. Bumble and the Stingers, and Freeman played piano on their first hit, "Bumble Boogie" (but not their later hit, "Nut Rocker"). He also performed with and arranged for The Routers and their parallel group The Marketts. He continued a successful session career in the 1960s, arranging and appearing on material by Frank Sinatra ("That's Life", "Strangers in the Night"); Connie Francis ("Jealous Heart", "Addio, mi' amore"); Dean Martin; and Petula Clark ("This is My Song", "For Love"), and becoming musical director with Reprise Records. From 1960 to 1964 he arranged virtually every session for Snuff Garrett at Liberty Records including artists Julie London, Bobby Vee, Johnny Burnette, Gene McDaniels, Timi Yuro and Walter Brennan. As a footnote, "National City" by the Joiner Arkansas Junior High School Band charted at 53 in May 1960 was made by a group of studio musicians led by Ernie Freeman. In 1967 and 1968, Freeman composed music for several films, including The Double Man, The Pink Jungle, and Duffy; and arranged Carol Burnett's 1972 Columbia Records album Carol Burnett Featuring If I Could Write a Song. In 1970 he contributed string arrangements to Simon and Garfunkel's Bridge Over Troubled Water album before his retirement later in the decade. He died at his home in Los Angeles in 1981 from a heart attack and is buried at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Glendale, California.

The R&B Pioneers Series – THE AWARDS (Honors)

The Grammy Award was established in 1958 to honor artists, the Grammy Hall of Fame in 1973 (recordings). The Rock & Roll Hall of Fame started inducting in 1986, the Rhythm & Blues Foundation's Pioneer Awards started in 1989 (with a "doubleyear" in 1890/91) and after 2001 awards are not given every year. The Blues Foundation founded its Hall of Fame with the first awards in 1980. The Rolling Stone list was polled by music industry professionals in 2004. The RIAA/NEA are recording industry associations, who in 2001 selected 265 songs. The BMI list was compiled in 1999 (comprising a Top 100 most played songs on radio/television). NPR is another radio Top 100 list (not ranked here but marked #). Notice that some of the true legends haven't received any of the listed awards or honors. There may be some entries missing after 2011 (since the editor of this has not double-checked the entries after 2011).

Robert Jr. Lockwood – the True Blues Veteran

this column: from Wikipedia.org (slightly edited)

Robert Lockwood, Jr., also known as Robert Junior Lockwood, (born March 27, 1915 in Turkey Scratch, near Marvell, Phillips County – died November 21, 2006 in Cleveland, Ohio) was an American Delta blues guitarist, who recorded for Chess Records among other Chicago labels in the 1950s and 1960s. The only direct student of Robert Johnson, he is well known as a longtime collaborator with Sonny Boy Williamson II and for his work in the mid-1950s with Little Walter. Robert Lockwood was born in Turkey Scratch, Arkansas, a hamlet west of Helena, Arkansas. He started playing the organ in his father's church at the age of 8. The famous bluesman Robert Johnson lived with Lockwood's mother for 10 years off and on after his parents' divorce. Lockwood learned from Johnson not only how to play guitar, but timing and stage presence as well. Because of his personal and professional association with the music of Robert Johnson, he became known as "Robert Junior" Lockwood, a nickname by which he was known among fellow musicians for the rest of his life, although he later frequently professed his dislike for this appellation.

Early career

By age 15, Lockwood was playing professionally at parties in the Helena area. He often played with his quasi-stepfather figure Robert Johnson as well as with Sonny Boy Williamson II and Johnny Shines. Lockwood played at fish fries, juke joints, and street corners throughout the Mississippi Delta in the 1930s. On one occasion Robert Johnson played on one side of the Sunflower River, while Lockwood played on the other, with the people of Clarksdale, Mississippi milling about the bridge, supposedly unable to tell which guitarist was the real Robert Johnson. Around 1937/38 Lockwood worked with Sonny Boy (II) and Elmore James in the Delta at places like Winona, Greenwood, and Greenville (where they most probably met Robert Johnson, who died in 1938). He also worked with Sonny Boy in the Clarksdale, Mississippi area in 1938 and 1939. He also played with Howlin' Wolf and others in Memphis, Tennessee in the late 1930s. From 1939 to 1940 Robert Jr. split his time playing in St. Louis, Missouri, Chicago, Illinois and Helena. On July 1, 1941, Lockwood made his first recordings with Doctor Clayton for the Bluebird label in Aurora, Illinois and on July 30 he recorded the four songs which were released as the first two 78s under his own name: "Little Boy Blue" / "Take A Little Walk With Me" (Bluebird B-8820) and "I'm Gonna Train My Baby" / "Black Spider Blues" (Bluebird B-8877). These songs remained in his repertoire throughout his career. Also in 1941, Lockwood and Williamson began their influential performances on the daily King Biscuit Time radio program on KFFA in Helena. For several years in the early 1940s the pair played together in and around Helena and continued to be associated with King Biscuit Time. From about 1944 to 1949 Lockwood played in West Memphis, Arkansas, St. Louis, Chicago and Memphis. Lockwood was an early influence on B. B. King and played with King's band during his early career in Memphis. In 1950, Lockwood settled in Chicago. A 1951 78 featured "I'm Gonna Dig Myself A Hole" / "Dust My Broom" (Mercury 8260) and a 1954 release contained "Aw Aw (Baby)" (aka "Sweet Home Chicago" / "Sweet Woman (From Maine)" (J.O.B 1107). In 1954 he replaced Louis Myers as guitarist in Little Walter's band, and played on Walter's #1 hit "My Babe" in 1955. He left Little Walter's band around 1957, and in the late '50s recorded several sessions with Sonny Boy Williamson for Chess Records, sessions which also included Willie Dixon and Otis Spann. Lockwood also performed and/or recorded with Sunnyland Slim, Eddie Boyd, Roosevelt Sykes, J.B. Lenoir, and Muddy Waters among others.

Later career

In 1960, Lockwood moved with Sonny Boy to Cleveland, Ohio where he resided for the second half of his life. In the early 1960s, as "Bob Lockwood, Jr., and Combo," he had a regular gig at Loving's Grill, located at 8426 Hough Avenue. From the 1970s through the 2000s, he performed regularly with his band the "All Stars" at numerous local venues, including Pirate's Cove, The Euclid Tavern, Peabody's, Wilbert's and for the last years of his career at Cleveland's Fat Fish Blue (corner of Prospect and Ontario in downtown) every Wednesday night at 8 p.m. where he played his regular three sets two days before the illness which led to his passing. The "All Stars" continued the Wednesday residency for two years after his death. His studio albums as a band leader include: Steady Rollin' Man (rec. 1970-Delmark); Contrasts (rec. 1973-Trix); ...Does 12 (rec. 1975-Trix); Hangin' On (rec. 1979-Rounder) with Johnny Shines; Mister Blues Is Back To Stay (rec. 1980-Rounder) with Johnny Shines; What's The Score (rec. 1990-Lockwood) and I Got To Find Me A Woman (rec. 1996-Verve). A 1972 45 included "Selfish Ways" / "Down Home Cookin'" (Big Star BB 020). Solo guitar and vocal albums include: Plays Robert and Robert (rec. 1982-Evidence); Delta Crossroads (rec. 2000-Telarc) and The Legend Live (rec. 2003-M.C.). A duet session with pianist Otis Spann in 1960 resulted in Otis Spann Is The Blues and Walking the Blues on Candid. At the age of sixty, in 1975, he discovered the 12-string guitar and preferentially played it almost exclusively for the latter third of his life. His most famous 12-string was a blue-colored one custom designed and made by the Japanese luthiers Moony Omote and Age Sumi. This instrument was acquired by the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Museum in February 2013 and is displayed there. A live recording with David "Honeyboy" Edwards, Joseph "Pinetop" Perkins and Henry "Mule" Townsend in Dallas in October 2004—Last of the Great Mississippi Delta Bluesmen: Live In Dallas—was awarded a Grammy for Best Traditional Blues Album. For Townsend and Lockwood it was their first Grammy win. Earlier in 2004 in Dallas he appeared at Eric Clapton's first Crossroads Guitar Festival. His last known recording session was carried out at Ante Up Audio studio in Cleveland; where he performed on the album The Way Things Go, with longtime collaborator Mark "Cleveland Fats" Hahn for Honeybee Entertainment. Lockwood died at the age of 91 in Cleveland, having earlier suffered a cerebral aneurysm and a stroke. He is buried at Riverside Cemetery in Cleveland.

Due to the European public domain legislations we can find nearly all of the original 1950-1962 recordings of our favorite R&B performers in professionally packed CDs with lots and lots of information on each artist. There are principally two main formulas of these great reissues – either chronological singles or two (or more) original LPs on one CD. Below you'll find some „regular legal“ new US CDs (issued before 2013).

Muddy Waters: Rollin' Stone / The Golden Anniversary Collection (2CD, 50 tracks 1947-1952) – MCA/Hip-O (2000) his first Aristocrat/Chess recordings. Hip-O-Select: Muddy Waters You Shook Me / The Chess Masters vol 3 (2CD) 1958-1963. The James Brown: Star Time / The Godfather of Soul (4CD, 71 tracks 1956-1984) – Universal/Polydor (1991/2007) a great journey thru Federal/King/Smash/Polydor.

Gilles Petard (France had already introduced the Classics Jazz Series and in 2001 he introduced the blues series (presenting classic pioneers – each with around 20 chronological tracks). Starting with a Ray Charles chronological 1949-1950 (# 5000) – a total of 190 CDs have been issued (so far) – the last # 5188 Sonny Boy Williamson and # 6189 Lonnie Johnson. The inlay booklets have nice presentations by Dave Penny and complete session discography.

THE CADETS / JACKS – The Bihari Brothers' Famous "Covers" Vocal Group

On April 10, 1955 a Los Angeles spiritual group (who had formed already in the late 1940s as the Santa Monica Soul Seekers) signed with Modern Records to start singing secular as The Cadets. The group soon also recorded as The Jacks, and specialised on waxing covers of known and unknown performers' hits. They did so in rapid succession to the originals (with Maxwell Davis as arranger and Joe Bihari producer at Modern's studios in Culver City). The group now replaced original Soul Seeker Glendon Kingsby with baritone Lloyd McCraw (from Chicago) and the original secular lineup also featured "Seekers" Willie Davis (WD), Aaron Collins (AC) and Austin Ted Taylor (TT), tenors; plus Will "Dub" Jones (DJ), bass vocal. McCraw soon became the groups' manager (in late 1955/early 1956), replaced by Thomas "Pete" Fox from The Flairs. Prentice Moreland guested as extra "high tenor" vocal on "Stranded In The Jungle" (when Taylor had went solo). The group now decided to keep it together as quartet. The Cadets/Jacks also backed several Modern Records acts (Donna Hightower, Richard Berry, Young Jessie, and possibly Jesse Belvin and others). The Biharis issued several albums with the Cadets and the Jacks (with some songs changing title – and both Aaron Collins and Prentice Moreland made solo recordings of which some were issued on "Cadets" LPs). Here are the original singles of The Cadets/Jacks (featured on two very nice UK Ace CDs issued in 1994 and 1995). Some of the recordings (especially the Jacks) also featured extra girl vocals (The Dreamers?). The Cadets/Jacks split up in late 1957. Dub Jones joined The Coasters, and Collins and Davis formed The Flares (managed by Buck Ram), who soon changed lineup. A couple of "Cadets" songs appeared on J.M.C. and later Jan-Lar (featured on the Ace compilations).

The Unique Atlantic Reissue Series on UK Sequel CDs - part one

In 1996 and 1997 UK Sequel reissued lots of Atlantic recordings on great CDs, often based on original Atlantic LPs (same covers and with facsimiles of the original album back notes) – now with lots of interesting "bonus tracks" (which hadn't been issued in album form) ... and some of the CDs even had a couple of previously unissued gems. But that's not all – several of the CDs had the original mono tracks in true stereo for the first time (same master as the mono cuts or in alternate takes). An earlier issue (1994) was Ruth Brown's "Miss Rhythm – Greatest Hits & More" on Sequel RSDCD 916 (shown left), featuring 2x20 tracks, originally issued on Atlantic 7 82061-2 (1989). Famous Tony Rounce (nowadays at Ace UK) worked for Sequel at this time. I am most certain he was responsible for much of the productions of these re-issues, although compilers and liner-notes writers were other well-known music expert (like Peter Burns, Neil Slaven, Seamus McGarvey, and others). The Coasters CDs were produced by Bob Fisher and the late Brian Watson (with notes by McGarvey). Below are the reissue CDs by The Drifters, The Clovers, Clyde McPhatter, The Coasters, LaVern Baker, Ruth Brown, Ben E. King, and Solomon Burke. A couple of more Atlantic gems (one more by Ben E. King, four by Clarence Carter, (plus reissues of Joe Turner and the Rhino Atlantic Master series) were released on Sequel.

Sequel RSACD 803 (20 tracks), RSACD 815 (23 tracks), RSACD817 (18 tracks), RSACD 833 – all issued 1996

RSACD 834 (22 tracks), RSACD 835 (15 tracks), RSACD 836 (21 tracks), RSACD 802 (16 tracks) – all issued 1996;

RSACD 868 (25 tracks), RSACD 869 (24 tracks), RSACD 870 (25 tracks), RSACD 871 (24 tracks) – all issued 1997

The Unique Atlantic Reissue Series on UK Sequel CDs - part two

Sequel RSACD 909 (17 tracks), RSACD 910 (20 tracks), RSACD 914 (12 tracks), RSACD 911 (18 tracks) – all issued 1997

RSACD 915 (12 tracks), RSACD 912 (18 tracks) - and the back of the CD plus inside back (facsimile of original LP back cover)

RSACD 913 (18 tracks), RSACD 857 (24 tracks), RSACD 858 (25 tracks), RSACD 864 - 25 tracks – all issued in 1997

The Unique Atlantic Reissue Series on UK Sequel CDs - part three

Here are some more of the terrific Sequel CDs (mostly with bonus tracks).

FROM SACRED TO SECULAR: A SOUL AWAKENING 8CD SOUL021

In a comprehensive overview from 1927 to 1963, this 8CD anthology covers the genesis of soul music, tracing connections between R&B, jazz, blues and gospel. By 1960, the sound of black popular music had turned away from a driving, largely uptempo rhythm and blues towards a more emotionally poignant style. The term 'soul' popped up here and there, but only became common parlance after the release of Ray Charles's I Believe To My Soul at the end of 1959. Detroit had Berry Gordy's Motown, Chicago had Curtis Mayfield and the Impressions and New York had Atlantic Records along with white songwriters Burt Bacharach and Jerry Ragavoy producing their uptown soul.

Down south, Stax was setting Memphis alight, Fame were starting up in Muscle Shoals, and New Orleans was putting funk into the mix. By 1963, soul had gone mainstream. This breathtaking collection brings you some of the most impassioned, compelling vocal performances ever to be recorded. The accompanying illustrated 36-page book sets out the historical background and explains some of the technical features that make these beautiful songs the precursors of soul music.

The Unsung King of the Blues – TAMPA RED

From Wikipedia (slightly edited)

Tampa Red (born in Smithville, Georgia January 8, 1904 – died in Chicago March 19, 1981), born Hudson Woodbridge but known from childhood as Hudson Whittaker, was an American Chicago blues musician. Some sources quote a different date of birth, ranging from "Christmas day, probably 1900" to "January 8, 1904"

Tampa Red is best known as an accomplished and influential blues guitarist who had a unique single-string slide style. His songwriting and his silky, polished "bottleneck" technique influenced other leading Chicago blues guitarists, such as Big Bill Broonzy and Robert Nighthawk, as well as Muddy Waters, Elmore James, Mose Allison and many others. In a career spanning over 30 years he also recorded pop, R&B and hokum records. His best known recordings include the "classic compositions 'Anna Lou Blues', 'Black Angel Blues', 'Crying Won't Help You', 'It Hurts Me Too', and 'Love Her with a Feeling'".

He was born Hudson Woodbridge in Smithville, Georgia, United States. His parents died when he was a child, and he moved to Tampa, Florida, where he was raised by his aunt and grandmother and adopted their surname, Whittaker. He emulated his older brother, Eddie, who played guitar, and he was especially inspired by an old street musician called Piccolo Pete, who first taught him to play blues licks on a guitar.

In the 1920s, having already perfected his slide technique, he moved to Chicago, Illinois, and began his career as a musician, adopting the name 'Tampa Red' from his childhood home and light colored skin. His big break was being hired to accompany Ma Rainey and he began recording in 1928 with "It's Tight Like That", in a bawdy and humorous style that became known as "hokum". Early recordings were mostly collaborations with Thomas A. Dorsey, known at the time as Georgia Tom. Tampa Red and Georgia Tom recorded almost 90 sides, sometimes as "The Hokum Boys" or, with Frankie Jaxon, as "Tampa Red's Hokum Jug Band".

In 1928, Tampa Red became the first black musician to play a National steel-bodied resonator guitar, the loudest and showiest guitar available before amplification, acquiring one in the first year they were available. This allowed him to develop his trademark bottleneck style, playing single string runs, not block chords, which was a precursor to later blues and rock guitar soloing. The National guitar he used was a gold-plated tricone, which was found in Illinois in the 1990s by music-shop owner and guitarist Randy Clemens and later sold to the "Experience Music Project" in Seattle. Tampa Red was known as "The Man With The Gold Guitar", and, into the 1930s, he was billed as "The Guitar Wizard".

His partnership with Dorsey ended in 1932, but he remained much in demand as a session musician, working with John Lee "Sonny Boy" Williamson, Memphis Minnie, Big Maceo, and many others. In 1934 he signed for Victor Records, remaining on their artist roster until 1953. He formed the Chicago Five, a group of session musicians who created what became known as the Bluebird sound, a precursor of the small group style of later jump blues and rock and roll bands. He was a close friend and associate of Big Bill Broonzy and Big Maceo Merriweather. He enjoyed commercial success and reasonable prosperity, and his home became a centre for the blues community, informally providing rehearsal space, bookings, and lodgings for the flow of musicians who arrived in Chicago from the Mississippi Delta as the commercial potential of blues music grew and agricultural employment in the south diminished.

By the 1940s he was playing electric guitar. In 1942 "Let Me Play With Your Poodle" was a # 4 hit on Billboard's new "Harlem Hit Parade", forerunner of the R&B chart, and his 1949 recording "When Things Go Wrong with You (It Hurts Me Too)", another R&B hit, was covered by Elmore James. He was 'rediscovered' in the late 1950s, like many other surviving early recorded blues artists such as Son House and Skip James, as part of the blues revival. His final recordings were in 1960.

He became an alcoholic after his wife's death in 1953. He died destitute in Chicago, aged 77.

Tampa Red was one of the most prolific blues recording artists of his era. It has been estimated that he recorded 335 songs on 78 rpm records, with 251 recorded between 1928 and 1942, making him the blues artist with the most recordings during that period. The bulk of his singles were released before Billboard magazine began tracking blues (and other "race music") in October 1942 and accurate sales records are not available. However, Red had four singles that placed in the R&B top ten between 1942 and 1951.

Ed note: Imaged right is the Ace 2-set CD Top2 1440 "Dynamite!" (issued June 2015), which features 50 tracks from his years with Bluebird/RCA Victor 1945-1954 (in reverse order with the latest single first).

From amazon:

Tampa Red's influential later recordings for RCA Victor (1945-53) have never been officially reissued on CD and rarely on LP, yet are a crucial element in the post-war blues canon. Many of his songs were covered by B.B. King, Muddy Waters and other top bluesmen. They feature the majestic piano of latter-day Elmore James sideman, Johnny Jones and include the harmonica of Big Walter Shakey Horton and Sonny Boy Williamson II. Ace have the original RCA session sheets from Sony for the booklet's discography plus an essay from Jim O Neal and introduction by co-compiler John Broven. There are four previously unissued tracks but none are available on authorised CD, not even on OOC releases. Comes over as new even to the most diehard blues collector, and fills a big void in the blues reissue field.

Musically "Dynamite!" feels like a double dose of Amos Milburn or Smiley Lewis but with a Bluesier more gutbucket edge. The 50-tracks across 2CDs cover Tampa Red's years at Bluebird and RCA Victor between 1941 and 1954 and are licensed from Sony Legacy (four cuts are Previously Unreleased). Disc One concentrates on his superb guitar playing and vocals (only a few cuts feature the Kazoo, they're mostly on Disc Two) - sided by his long-term playing buddies - Little Johnny Jones and Big Maceo on Piano, Odie Payne in Drums, Ransom Knowling on Bass, Bill Casimir on Saxophone and the occasional warbling harmonica genius of Walter "Shakey" Horton and Sonny Boy Williamson II. And even as I replay this magnificent 2CD retrospective - there's a feeling of 'major release' seeping out of its every pore.

Is this possibly the most underrated BLUES SINGER?

BABY BOY WARREN August 13, 1919 – July 1, 1977

Detroit Blues Singer / Guitarist born Robert Henry Warren in Lake Providence, Louisiana, in 1919, and at the age of three months moved with his parents to Memphis, Tennessee. He was interested in music from an early age, and was working occasionally as a musician from around 1931, when he dropped out of school, having learned to play guitar from two of his older brothers.

In the 1930s, he worked in W. C. Handy Park, Memphis, with Howling Wolf, Robert Jr. Lockwood and Little Buddy Doyle and he appeared on the radio show King Biscuit Time broadcast from Helena, Arkansas, with Sonny Boy Williamson around 1941. In 1942, he moved to Detroit, where he worked for General Motors while also performing as a musician. Warren's first recording sessions were made in 1949 and 1950 in Detroit (from Wikipedia).

5 Blues Favorites by Claus Röhnisch (published in the Swedish blues magazine JEFFERSON in December 2018)

SONNY BOY WILLIAMSON
sings Down And Out Blues

The fourth of the Chess catalog's "Big Four" (and Sonny Boy's first), issued early 1959 with Chicago recordings from August 1955 until March 1958 (earlier issued on singles). Here we have Willie Dixon, leading different combos, featuring a.o. Otis Spann, Robert Jr Lockwood, Luther Tucker and Fred Below. Lafayette Leake and Muddy Waters are also present on some of these genuine juke-bar-blues with the harmonica in the head role, even if "Sonny Boy"'s whiskey-filled voice is the record's prime. "Don't Start Me Talkin'" (as it was known on single) starts the album. I was already a blues freak before this was obtained in the middle sixties, but now it was definitely confirmed.
Chess/Checker LP 1437

T-BONE WALKER
T-Bone Blues

When this LP was issued in 1959 Nesuhi Ertegun had been producing fantastic jazz recordings for years (and was also responsible for the covers of the Atlantic R&B LPs). We hadn't heard from T-Bone for long, even if the company had recorded some songs in Chicago with him under the direction of Ahmet Ertegun and Jerry Wexler in 1955. Nesuhi had produced Los Angeles recordings from 1956 (with Lloyd Glenn at the piano) and in 1957 (with the brothers Plas Johnson, sax and Ray Johnson, pno). When the CD reissue was delivered in 1989 the album grew to 15 super, sophisticated club blues by the "guitar wizard".
Atlantic LP 8020

JOHN LEE HOOKER
Travelin'

Det finns de som påstår att "det här är väl ingenting". Jag tycker precis tvärtom – det absolut bästa. Sann electric down home blues (det enda tråkiga är att de flesta låtarna har fade-outs som kan knäcka den mest transfyllda lyssnaren). LP:n är den första rena album-sessionen som Johnnie gjorde för Vee-Jay (1 mars 1960) med ett combo bestående av Chicagos duktige William "Lefty" Bates, rytmgitarr; Sylvester Hickman, bas och Detroit-trummissen Jimmy Turner. Jag har väl lyssnat till denna LP med "No Shoes" i spets tusentals gånger (och får aldrig nog). Köpte den redan 1961 och den blev grunden till min bluessamling.
Vee-Jay LP 1023

JACKIE WILSON
Somethin' Else!!

Relativt snart efter att Jackie tillsammans med Alonzo Tucker (han som en gång i tiden skapat The Royals – senare Midnighters i Detroit) hade skrivit "Baby Workout", dök den här inte särskilt framgångsrika LP:n upp i juni 1964, där Alonzo och Jackie i New York fick fria händer att skapa en LP precis så som de själva ville – och resultatet blev en fullspäckad rytmisk vokalgrupps-historia som faktiskt inte uppskattades till fullo. Hos mig har denna produkt landat som något av det mest intressanta Wilson gjort. Arrangerat och orkesterlett av Gil Askey (duktigt trumpetare som hade lett tidiga Wilson Pickett-inspelningar och producerat Billy Guy för Lloyd Price – men snart blev en av Motowns stora dirigenter).
Brunswick LP 754117

JAMES BROWN
Grits & Soul / The instrumental Sounds of the James Brown Band

Släppt runt mars 1965 (Browns andra Smash-LP) och inspelad i Chicago och Miami i juni och augusti året innan med James vid orgeln, är denna produkt det kanske mest intressanta som hände Brown efter att han (tillfälligt) bröt med Syd Nathan hos King Records och försökte sig på en ny karriär med Ben Bart (som han skapade produktionsbolaget Fair Deal med efter "Oh Baby Don't You Weep" och som resulterade i det nya funksound som senare födde "Papa's Got A Brand New Bag"). Browns nye orkesterledare, altaxofonisten Nat Jones, har en viktig roll i denna produktion (och i King-alstren under mitten av 60-talet). Hela nio album på Smash konkurrerade med King-produkterna 1964-68 (men bara den första och sista innehöll vokallåtar).

The Great Year of 1957 - 5 More Blues Favorites by Claus Röhnisch (in Swedish)

LITTLE WALTER

The Best of Little Walter

Walter Jacobs' debutalbum (utgiven runt oktober 1957 och som återutgivits ett otal gånger) tillhör något av det finaste man kan tänka sig kring Chicago-bluesens post-war-boom. Här finns allt och inte minst den djupt känsliga "Last Night" (från 1954). Inspelningarna härstammar från Walters första singlar, med början i maj 1952 ("Juke") till och med januari 1955 ("My Babe") och med komp av främst the Jukes (bröderna David och Louis Meyers och Fred Below), men här finns också Muddy Waters, Jimmy Rogers, Robert Jr Lockwood, Luther Tucker och Willie Dixon (bland andra). Walter var tidvis (åtminstone i början) till och med populärare än sin gamle "arbetsgivare" Muddy Waters (som han jobbat med sedan 1947).
Chess/Checker LP 1428

la vern

LaVerns allra första LP, från december 1956, är inte i huvudsak baserad på singlar. I stället finns här 12 långt-ifrån "överblivet material" producerat av Jerry Wexler och Ahmet Ertegun (varav endast två låtar släpptes som singlar senare). Sex av titlarna härstammar från en New York-session den 19 oktober 1956 och de övriga är gjorda mellan juni 1953 och januari 1956. Endast ett fåtal kan kallas rock'n'roll. Majoriteten består av underbara ballader, klassiska standards och framför allt av den hypersköna "I'm In A Crying Mood" och Chuck Willis' komposition "Of Course I Do".
Atlantic LP 8002

THE COASTERS

The Coasters

När det var högaktuellt för Jerry Leiber och Mike Stoller att i november 1957 släppa en LP med de framgångsrika Coasters från Los Angeles efter succén med den dubbelsidiga storsäljaren "Young Blood / Searchin'" fanns inte material nog, men det löste sig. Halften av LPns 14 låtar härstammar från Leiber-Stollers Spark-period med the Robins tidigt 1954 till runt juli 1955. Resten är Coasters i underbar form 1956-1957. De flesta låtarna (inklusive Robins) leds av Carl Gardner's upplyftande, glada, sköna stämna med benäget bistånd av bassångaren Bobby Nunn (som också han fanns hos the Robins). Stoller spelar piano, Gil Bernal hanterar den tuffa saxen och Billy Guy (bariton) finns hos the Coasters.
Atco LP 33-101

B. B. KING

Singin' the Blues

Våren 1957 släpptes Bihari-brödernas första LP med the Blues Boy på lågprisetiketten Crown. LPn bestod av det mesta av det bästa från hans tidiga RPM-epok. Singlar från Memphis 1951 och 1952 (med Ike Turner, Johnny Ace och Earl Forest), Houston 1953 (med Bill Harvey's orkester), samt Los Angeles från hösten 1954 till hösten 1955 (med tenorsaxofonisten Maxwell Davis, som leder det fina studiobandet med bland andra Bumps Myers, Willard McDaniel och Jesse Sailes). "Crying Won't Help You" kommer förmodligen från en Chicago-session i oktober 1955 med King's roadband (som inkluderade Millard Lee, piano och Johnny Board, sax). "Sweet Little Angel" är en L.A. studioversion (troligen från november). King gjorde sin singelversion med roadbandet i Little Rock runt april/maj 1956.
Crown LP 5020

MUDDY WATERS

The Best of Muddy Waters

1957 kom Muddy's första LP ut (verkar som om den inte anmäldes förrän i april 1958). Den innehåller kanonlåtar från april 1948 ("I Can't Be Satisfied", inspelad i december 1947), februari 1950 ("Rollin' Stone"), oktober samma år ("Louisiana Blues"), samt andra tunga superblues gjorda mellan 1951 och 1954 (inkl den klassiska "I'm Your Hoochie Cooche Man" som den hette på singel, ja till och med några exemplar med "Kooche" stavning). I början får vi nöja oss med Big Crawford i kompet (eller Muddy solo), snart blir det hans berömda band med Little Walter, Jimmy Rogers och Otis Spann i huvudroller. Junior Wells gästar på en låt och det påstås ibland att Big Walter finns på "I Want You To Love Me", som hette "Mad Love" på singeln. Willie Dixon självklar på de senare låtarna "I Just Want To Make Love To You" hette "Just Make Love To Me" på singel och Muddy för första gången utan gitarr på "I'm Ready".

THE GREAT KENT LP-SERIES - "Anthology of the Blues"

In 1969 Kent started its 12-part Series – based on researching acetates and files in the Bihari's vaults. The Series was initiated by Frank Scott and Bruce Bromberg with assistance from Joe Bihari at Kent Records. The first ten volumes were issued during 1969 and the last two around 1970. All were artful gatefolds (featuring various artists of mostly the early 1950s). All of the LPs were reissued on United/Superior in 1976/77 (US-7778 – 7789)

THE LEGEND OF ELMORE JAMES

ARCHIVE SERIES—VOLUME ONE

Driving north along Highway 51, in the early Spring of 1968, we passed through many small, almost deserted towns and gazed at hundreds of lonely sharecropper's shacks along the side of the road. We were in Mississippi, and the scene evoked in us thoughts of the delta, cotton, oppression, and, of course, the blues. The blues of this region is a special kind, harsh and intense, like the conditions which fostered them. Rarely is the true essence of the blues captured as well as it is in the passionate outcry of Elmore James:

I believe, I believe my time ain't long
I believe, I believe my time ain't long
Dust my broom this morning
You know I treat my baby wrong.

Underlying the savage fatalism of these lyrics is Elmore's whining bottleneck guitar, which seems to echo the very essence of his loneliness, intense, and sometimes seemingly bitter feelings.

Highway 51 has a great deal of meaning for the Mississippi Negro. Frequently sung about by bluesmen, it was the route used by many in their flight from oppression in the South to the promise of a better lot in the North. And with them they took their music so that by the mid-forties and early fifties the blues being sung in Detroit and Chicago was the music of men born and raised in Mississippi. In the cities of the North the music underwent a transition, the solitary singer with his acoustic guitar could no longer be heard above the noise in the brass rowdy clubs which were part of the urban environment, so the bluesman plugged his guitar into an amplifier and added other musicians to help him out. While still retaining the earthy vitality of its country origins, the music became transformed into a new dynamic style. This process reached its peak with the great Chicago blues bands of the 1950's and is still alive and vital today even though its form has continued to change.

Among those who brought the deep south blues north to Chicago was the man whose thrilling music you hear on this album, Elmore James. Elmore's birthplace of Canton is only a stones throw from Highway 51. He was born there in 1918 and was inevitably exposed to the rich blues heritage of Mississippi. There is no need to list all the great blues singers from that State who Elmore must have seen and heard in his youth. It would read like a Who's Who of great bluesmen. Suffice it to say that by the age of 12 he had started to make music with a broom and bottleneck in the tradition of so many southern Negroes and was soon playing regularly in the clubs and barrelhouses which abounded at that time. His playing companions are legends in their own right: Rice Miller (alias Sonny Boy Williamson), Big Boy Williams, Big Boy Crudup and Robert Johnson. The latter was one of the greatest bluesmen of all time, recording 26 sides for the Vocalion Company in 1936 and 1937. These sides have a brooding, spine chilling intensity and almost demonic passion. What little is known about Robert depicts him as a lonely intense man and perhaps it is not surprising that the same thing could be said about Elmore. Like Robert he has remained very much an enigma, in spite of his popularity in the fifties. Everyone who knew him agrees that he was a fine musician and a wonderful person; but not too much else is known about his personality or life.

By the forties Elmore had settled down in the capitol city of Jackson and ran a radio repair business. It was in Jackson that Elmore cut his first record for the small local Trumpet Record Company. This disc, cut in the summer of 1951, was further evidence of Elmore's affinity to Robert Johnson; for it was Robert's 1937 recording of "Dust My Broom" brought up to date by the additions of a harp and bass. This is the first time that Elmore's harsh declamatory vocals and biting bottleneck guitar were to be heard on record and the disc was an immediate success throughout the country. It even reached number 9 in the Billboard Rhythm and Blues chart, a rare occurrence for a record that was pure country blues.

The tune and guitar riff used in "Dust My Broom" were to remain a constant feature of Elmore's music up to his death in 1963. But Elmore was not a minor bluesman, he was one of the greats; and like all great artists he was able to use the same basic formula again and again and yet each time modifying it or adding something new so that it came out fresh and original every time. And the same theme was to provide the inspiration to so many musicians who followed Elmore, and who are still active today. Yet, none could imbue it with the excitement and vitality that Elmore did.

The success of "Dust My Broom" attracted the attention of Joe and Jules Bihari, who were searching in the South for blues talent to record on their rapidly expanding Modern group of labels. Joe found Elmore playing in a club in Jackson and in the summer of 1952 he took Elmore to Chicago where he cut four sides with Johnny Jones on piano and J.T. Brown on sax. The addition of a sax added a certain urban quality to Elmore's country; but the feeling was still the same. These four sides, together with eight others recorded in Chicago and Canton, are included in this album and give the listener a cross section of Elmore's talent.

Although Elmore now spent much time in Chicago, recording and playing in clubs, he still frequently returned to his home state to visit his family, and spent long periods of time there. It is perhaps the fact that Elmore was so continuously exposed to the Mississippi environment that resulted in his music retaining its intense emotion and passion right up until his last recordings in 1962.

Unfortunately Elmore ran into union troubles in 1961 and this forced him to give up playing. He went back to live in Jackson, but the years of stress as a musician had taken their toll. Elmore had become a heavy drinker and this, together with an asthmatic condition had led to several heart attacks. On May 23, 1963, the eve of a recording session in Chicago, Elmore had his final heart attack. Big Bill Hill, the disc jockey who had sorted out his union problems and arranged for his trip to Chicago, paid Elmore's funeral expenses and arranged to have Elmore's body sent back home to Jackson.

When Elmore died he was almost unknown outside of the black community which bought his records and made him a popular artist. The blues boom which was to bring so many blues artists to the attention of a world wide audience was only just beginning. Had Elmore lived it is possible that his lonely character would have led him to shun the publicity that so many others seek.

A feeling for what it must have been like to see Elmore in action can be found in the words of Georges Adins, a Belgian, who saw Elmore perform in Chicago in 1959. His recollections are vivid.

"Elmore James will always remain the most exciting and dramatic blues singer and guitarist that I've ever had a chance to see perform in the flesh. Unforgettable will be that first night in December 1959 when Muddy Waters took me to the THELMA LOUNGE on Chicago's south side where Elmore was playing. On our way we listened to him on the radio as Big Bill Hill, a well known disc jockey in Chicago, was broadcasting direct from that place. I was burning to see Elmore James and before we even pushed open the door of the club, we could hear Elmore's violent guitar sound. Although the place was overcrowded, we managed to find a seat close to the bandstand and the blues came falling down on me as it had never done before. Watching Elmore sing and play, backed by solid bluesband (Homesick James, J.T. Brown, Boyd Atkins and Sam Casell) made me feel real fine. Wearing thick glasses, Elmore's face always had an expressive and dramatic look, especially when he was real gone on the slow blues. Singing with a strong and rough voice, he really didn't need a mike. On such slow blues as "I'm Worried" - "Make My Dreams Come True" - "It Hurts Me" his voice reached a climax and created a tension that was unmistakably the down and out blues. Notwithstanding that raw voice, Elmore sang his blues with a particular feeling, an emotion and depth that showed his country background. His singing was, I should say, fed, reinforced by his own guitar accompaniment which was as rough, violent and expressive as was his voice. Using the bottleneck technique most of the time, Elmore really let his guitar sound as if I had never heard a guitar sound before. You just couldn't sit still! You had to move, and when he gave free rein to his guitar, the people in the joint went crazy and some people ran to the bandstand throwing bills of 1 and 5 dollars at Elmore's feet.

I seldom saw Elmore smile on stage and as soon as he finished his set, he went behind the bar to get his liquor. Elmore really drank a lot, but never did his music suffer from it. When he left the place, I was really knocked out and promised Elmore to be back every night. At the old Alex Club on the west side, he always played for a dance audience and he made the people jump. "Bobby's Rock" was at that time one of the favorite numbers of the crowd and Elmore used to play that instrumental number for fifteen minutes and more. You just couldn't stand that hysterical sound coming down on you. The place was rocking, swinging! Elmore was no big talker and seemed to be rather withdrawn. He wasn't married and had no children. I believe something was worrying him all the time. When he was not playing he was drinking and vice versa. That was the life that came to a tragic end at the age of 45. When the news of his death reached me from Chicago I just couldn't believe it. That same night I listened to all his records and realized once more that the world of the blues had lost one of its best and most valuable representatives. In fact, there will never be another Elmore James!

Unfortunately for Elmore, the world discovered his greatness too late. But fortunately for the world he left us a legacy—his records. As long as these remain, the world will remember Elmore.

Elmore James Volume I is the first in a series of Blues reissues from the Modern, Flair and RPM labels, predecessors of the Kent Record Company. This album which contains some of Elmore's finest work, features three recordings never previously issued. In addition, there are three alternate takes of issued, but now obscure records. Of added interest are some fragments of Elmore talking between takes at a Chicago session.

"So Mean To Me", "Where Can My Baby Be" and "Canton, Mississippi Breakdown" were found in January 1969, in a dusty box of tapes stashed in the back of the Kent Recording Studio. Joe Bihari had told us on several occasions that he thought there was a tape with unissued Elmore James material on it, however, it took Joe, Frank Scott and myself several days and many hours to find it. "I Believe", "Sinful Woman" and "Held My Baby Last Night" were recorded in Chicago in 1952. Musicians on the session were Johnny Jones - piano, J.T. Brown - tenor sax and Odie Payne on drums. This session was done by Joe Bihari in Chicago, even though the records were released on Lester Bihari's Meteor label out of Memphis.

"Please Find My Baby" and "Hand In Hand" were recorded in a Canton, Mississippi night club in either 1953 or 1954. These are two of Elmore's finest recordings. As was the case on all of Elmore's Mississippi recordings for Flair, Ike Turner is featured on piano, rather than Johnny Jones. The other personnel on these sessions is not known. "Please Find My Baby" is an alternate take to the issued version, and although a little ragged, is Elmore James at his powerful best.

"Wild About You", "Canton, Mississippi Breakdown" and "Long Tall Woman" were recorded on April 1, 1956 in Chicago. The personnel on these sides is basically the same as the 1952 session, done in Chicago. "Long Tall Woman" and "Wild About You" are both alternate takes. "1839 Blues" was probably recorded in Chicago, however, the date is not known.

"Rock My Baby Right" was probably done in Culver City, California, where Elmore did his last session for the Bihari in 1956. Musicians for the California session included, Willard McDaniel - piano, Maxwell Davis - tenor sax, Jewel Grant - baritone sax, James Parr - trumpet, Chuck Hamilton - bass and Jesse Sailes on drums.

Elmore James was a blues giant, his voice and guitar are instantly recognizable. Records released after his death have out sold those of his still active contemporaries. It is ironic that the man, so influential in the current surge of blues interest, should until now have no available LP's in the United States.

Those of you who have never heard Elmore, here is an introduction to one of the greatest blues artists; those of you who have heard him, need I say more?

THE ATLANTIC BLUES LP SERIES

In 1986 Atlantic issued four terrific 2set LPs containing various artists, who had recorded blues for Atlantic during the labels long-time history. Several of the early recordings were rare, prev. unissued, recordings (e.g. "Chicago Blues" by Little Johnny Jones with Elmore James – prob. recorded October 9, 1954 – not 1953), and several of the later (1970s) recordings were "live".

8 LP Box A1-81713 (issued 1986) contains the following four double LP gatefold sets (also issued in 1986)

- Atlantic Blues: Piano A1-81694
- Atlantic Blues: Guitar A1-81695
- Atlantic Blues: Vocalists A1-81696
- Atlantic Blues: Chicago A1-81697

The R&B Box

Rhino R2 17806 (6CD box 1994)
108 tracks 1943-1972

30 years of R&B -amazon review:
The six-CD R&B Box is impressively ambitious, arching as it does from the "race record" era to the day before disco. Jump blues, boogie, postwar vocal groups, shouters and honkers, early rock & roll, doo-wop, and myriad varieties of soul music all rear their heads here; while the selections may often seem obvious to longtime listeners, the set will certainly knock out anyone new to the history of these sounds. -- Rickey Wright

Blowing The Fuse

Bear Family BCD 16700-715 AS (16 CD digipaks 2004-2006)
460 tracks 1945-1960

amazon review (1956 volume):
The "Blowing The Fuse" series of CD compilations stretches across 16 volumes from 1945 to 1960 and was then followed by Bear Family's equally magnificent "Sweet Soul Music" series of 10 sets from 1961 to 1970 (I've reviewed all 10 of those in detail). Having been drawn in by the truly beautiful sound and presentation of the Soul discs, I knew it would be a big blow to my bank balance buying even one of these R&B issues - and it was - but they're absolutely 'so' worth it...

"Blowing The Fuse - 30 R&B Classics That Rocked The Jukebox In 1956" is on Bear Family BCD 16711 AS and was released April 2006. Each US-based yearly compilation comes in a 3-way foldout card digipak sleeve. The left flap pictures either a 7" single or album relevant to the year (1956 has "Honky Tonk (Part 1)" by Bill Doggett), the centre flap holds a 80 to 90 page oversized booklet that slips out so you can read it separately and the right flap a colour-themed CD that matches the outer packaging. As with the 10 "Sweet Soul Music" compilations, each of the 16 R&B spines makes up a whole photo when placed alongside each other (a fantastic black & white shot of a crowd of hip dudes and their gals dancing at some Saturday night bar). As you can see from the cover photos of these compilations too, the theme of people dancing and artists enjoying themselves is repeated right across all of these wonderfully restored photographs (they're from The Showtime Music Archive in Toronto). This 1956 issue has 84-pages in its booklet and the CD runs to a generous 79:20 minutes. Dave "Daddy Cool" Booth took his time with this - actually playing the set through - mixing in the famous with the obscure but in a new order - and the result is a truly satisfying listen rather than a patchy one. The compilation begins in January and in rough chronological order ends in December. And even the way-too-familiar tracks on here like "The Great Pretender", "In The Still Of The Night" and "Roll Over Beethoven" are sorted out by the next big plus...the beautifully clear sound... - Mark Barry

Electric Blues

Bear Family BCD 16921-24 CP (4x3CD digipaks 2011)
291 tracks 1939-2005 Plug It In! Turn It Up!

All Music review (Vol 1):

Bear Family's Electric Blues history Plug It In! Turn It Up! may not seem quite as ambitious as some of their projects, but that's only because it arrives in four volumes of three CDs, not a hulking 12-disc, 12X12 box complete with a hardcover book. Taken on its own terms, it is a pretty impressive chronicle of electrified blues from its infancy to its prime. Here in the first volume, the spotlight shines on its birth, opening up with a cut from Andy Kirk & His Twelve Clouds of Joy, a 1939 side called "Floyd's Guitar Blues" featuring a solo by Floyd Smith, and running to 1954, when the jumping, hard-charged sound started to break into the big time. Wisely, Bear Family is happy to repeat artists -- there is no way to limit yourself to just one T-Bone Walker or Muddy Waters song, after all -- and they bend the rules ever so slightly, letting in sides by R&B singers like Fats Domino and Ray Charles, artists who aren't always strictly classified as electric blues but certainly fit this wide definition. Roughly speaking, the first disc here is devoted to the swinging, jumping sounds of the '40s and '50s, with the second finding the rawer, nastier sounds starting to sneak in (Jackie Brenston's "Rocket '88," Howlin' Wolf's "How Many More Years," Elmore James "Dust My Broom," and Little Walter's "Juke" pop up here), and the third concluding with the rise of overdriven Chicago blues and boogie, with Jimmy Reed rubbing shoulders with Wynonie Harris. Perhaps there are some seminal sides from these 15 minutes -- almost certainly there are -- but this first volume of Plug It In! Turn It Up! tells its story expertly and, best of all, it sounds like a party as it does so. -- Steven Thomas Erlewine

Atlantic Rhythm And Blues

Atlantic CD 82305 (8CD box 1991)
203 tracks 1947-1974

All Music review:

This eight-CD set should be a part of any collection that presumes to take American music -- not just rock & roll or rhythm & blues -- seriously. Atlantic Records was one of dozens of independent labels started up after the war by neophyte executives and producers, but it was different from most of the others in that the guys who ran it were honest and genuinely loved music. Coupled with a lot of luck and some good judgment, the results trace a good chunk of the history of American music and popular culture. Disc one opens with cuts which slot in somewhere midway between jazz, bop, and "race" music (as the term was used then). Disc two is pure, distilled R&B, the stuff filling the airwaves of black radio and the jukeboxes in the "wrong" parts of town in 1952-54. Surprisingly, the material on Disc three, covering 1955-57, isn't very different in content or character from Disc two, despite the fact that it covers the period when white teenagers were starting to listen to and buy these records in large numbers. It's only with Disc four that one sees the consequences of the late '50s -- Ray Charles in his final days with the label, juxtaposed with the Drifters in their post-1958 incarnation and the start of the company's relationship with Stax/Volt Records. Disc six (1965-67) is practically a mini-tribute to Stax/Volt, filled with the best-known sides of Eddie Floyd, Otis Redding, Sam & Dave, and Booker T. & the MG's. Discs seven and eight run from the late '60s and the heyday of Aretha Franklin to some great early-'70s soul, including Roberta Flack and the Spinners. The booklet, with a full sessionography and biographical notes on each artist, would be worth 20 bucks on its own. -- Bruce Eder

Blues & Rhythm Review (Vol 3 1952-57):

Well what a set this one is... it is not JUST the music that makes it so valuable (I nearly wrote important)...The 68 page booklet (fully illustrated with labels, photos and billboards) is an exemplar of how these things should be done. Each individual track comes with a textual analysis and full recording details...The wealth of information presented is both impressive and delightful. Impressive because of the volume of research that must have been undertaken to produce the text and delightful because of the fascinating information delivered to the reader, particularly in the context of the sequencing of the tracks...there is more information here than will often be found in some books purporting to discuss the genre. -- Jan McKenzie

Street Corner Symphonies

Bear Family BCD 17279-293 AR (15 CD digipaks 2012-2013)
483 tracks 1939-1963

amazon review (1953 volume):

Hot on the heels of their definitive "Blowing The Fuse" and "Sweet Soul Music" CD Series (25 volumes of R'nB and Soul) comes their Vocal Group attack - 15 discs spanning 1939 to 1963. Volumes 1 to 10 hit the shops in 2012 in dumps of five (May and October) and the last five in the spring of 2013. And while critics will argue that Vocal Group music has already been done to death by Rhino (3 x 4CD Box Sets across the decades) and a mountain of other cheap labels taking advantage of the 50-year copyright law - this is the first time someone reputable (other than Rhino) have had a go - and typically these Bear Family CDs are gorgeous in all the right places - presentation and audio. Here are the boys Crying In The Chapel... - Mark Barry

A Complete Introduction to Chess

Universal Chess 531 770-2
(4CD book-box 2010)
100 tracks 1948-1975

amazon review:

One bourbon, one scotch, one beer. Chances are the average listener will go through considerably more drinks than that during this mammoth 100-tracks-on-four-discs collection, especially if it's digested in a single sitting. Not because boozy liquid lubrication is required to navigate through its content, due to any quality shortcomings. Oh no. More because every disc presents several opportunities to hoist a glass to one of the most important record labels of pop's early history. Three numbers from John Lee Hooker represent the tip of this set's blues iceberg. Also included are cuts from Bo Diddley, Howlin' Wolf (1956's Smokestack Lightnin' is a given), Muddy Waters (Mannish Boy and I'm Your Hoochie Coochie Man, check) and Lowell Fulson, whose Reconsider Baby was a number three hit in 1954. The label's soul selection is similarly well represented: Fontella Bass's sublime Rescue Me opens disc three, and Etta James makes five appearances. Among her efforts is I Just Want to Make Love to You, recorded in 1960 and a UK top five hit in 2006 when it was used in a soft drink commercial. This belated success highlights a significant aspect of this release's appeal—although Chess ceased to operate in 1975, after 25 years of business, many of these songs have enjoyed leases of life far longer than anyone involved in their creative processes could have foreseen. Like Motown's, the Chess catalogue has been regularly raided by filmmakers—Chuck Berry's Johnny B Goode, recorded in 1958, featured in the 1985 movie Back to the Future (albeit as played by the character Marty McFly), and Mannish Boy has cropped up countless times on the silver screen. Chess itself was the subject of a pair of 2008 flicks, Who Do You Love and Cadillac Records. And it's not only the cinema that has been graced by Chess sounds. The Ramsey Lewis Trio's version of The In Crowd was used by Radio 1 when Jimmy Savile was a station fixture, and numerous tracks here have achieved a certain ubiquity through cover versions, such as The Dells' Oh, What a Night and the Willie Dixon-penned Wang Dang Doodle. The latter is performed here by Koko Taylor, but it was also recorded by The Pointer Sisters and, rather less memorably, PJ Harvey. So, although Chess is long retired from the music industry, the Chicago label's catalogue owned by Universal (their similarly packaged introductions to Motown and Sugar Hill are also available), these songs deserve a place in the collections of today's listeners. That so many are immediately recognisable is testament to their lasting appeal. The classics, clichéd though it is to say so, truly never go out of style. - Mike Diver

Don't miss these classic "Electric Blues" - Part I (1949-1959)

Here are listed just a tiny wee of all the great Blues Recordings. They are selected from my personal collection – but taste changes every minute.
A great inspiration to the list has been Nick Duckett's super series "The History of Rhythm & Blues" (2009-2011), and Bear Family's great "Electric Blues" series (2012), as well as "The Blues Discography" (by Fancourt-McGrath, 2012 edition).

American Folk Blues Festival 1962-1985 - from <http://www.wirz.de/music/afbffrm.htm>

On some of the tours the ensemble was not 100 % identical on every performing date to the ensembles presented below. Most of the early tours were done in October. Some of the ensembles presented below may be not fully correct. The show appeared every year 1962-1970, plus 1972, 1980-83 and 1985. Not all shows were "documented" on record. There were also "Blues & Gospel Tours" in Britain in the mid 1960s (featuring a.o. Sister Rosetta Tharpe and several blues icons).

But following a disagreement - to say the least - between Lippman-Rau and Al Smith who MC'd the show that featured a lot of 'his' Bluesway artists, the tapes were taken by Smith for issuing it on Bluesway in the USA. Unfortunately, nothing ever happened. I'm pretty sure that those tapes were still laying in some vaults when Al Smith died. Where are they now?"

- Down Home Blues Chicago is THE definitive collection of blues music from Chicago-based musicians from the late 1940s to the late 1950s
- Features 41 artists who were influential in developing the Chicago blues scene, including Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf, Little Walter, Jimmy Rogers and many more
- Five CD set, packaged in a deluxe digipak with an outer slip case, featuring 134 rare tracks, all digitally remastered, some of which have never been previously available
- Also includes an 88 page book featuring an essay on the origins of Chicago music by renowned blues researcher and historian Mike Rowe, complete with rare photos, tracklisting and full sessionography

The period from the end of World War II until the dawn of the 1960s, the blues scene in Chicago can rightfully be described as one of its golden ages.

Passionate, powerful and personal, blues is the spirit of black America. It was a direct result of the Great Migration, when thousands upon thousands of black people left the rural south to settle in the urban areas in the North. Many of these came from the Mississippi delta and chose Chicago as the natural destination. Chicago was a city of opportunities. For musicians with their roots from the South, here was a welcoming network of clubs, radio stations and record labels and – most importantly – a large and appreciative audience.

This 5CD set features a collection of 134 extraordinary performances from this golden era of down home blues. Some by most famous blues stars like Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf, Little Walter and Jimmy Rogers – with several lesser known artists. Many of these tracks were unissued at the time, others are alternate takes of issued songs, but are equally as fine. There are included some ultra-rare gems.

Included is an 88 page book written by Mike Rowe, blues historian and the author of Chicago Blues, first published as Chicago breakdown, the definitive works on the history and the thriving times of its blues scene. Fully illustrated including rare photographs, graphics and sessionography.

The perfect companion album to Wienerworld's Detroit Special (WNRCD5095) – the definitive 3CD introduction to the down home Detroit blues scene.

Down Home Blues is a northern city – smaller but close to Chicago – where country southern blacks migrated to find work and found themselves within new urban surroundings. Amongst their numbers were blues musicians – who took with them their traditional sounds. It began to develop with a more aggressive feel which grew with them in their new urban life surroundings. There are 21 different artists here. There is a variety. There are soloists of players who encompassed into small combo group recordings to the solo player whose sound without doubt was perfect without any one accompaniment. There are artists here who made more commercial recordings than others, who made just one record out. By the late 40s there are some unissued recordings – from unissued open source discs. This three album set from Detroit blues masters from the post war period up to 1962 is complemented with a 48 page book on Detroit and the scene by blues researcher and historian Mike Rowe. With many photographs, graphics and full sessionography.
